MANY CHANGES PROMISED

Sharp Fights in Michigan, Illinois, Tennesee, Minnesota, Wyoming, and Other States-A Dozen or Twenty New Men May Be Expected After March 4-Great Interest Manifested by the Law-makers.

"What do you hear from the Senatorial the Capitol and among members of Congress now. It is apparent in this season of Senafor-making that the United States Senate is to present many new faces and lose many of the old ones after the 4th of March, The thirty Senators whose terms expire on that date belong to what the Congressional Directory labels the "second class." It is already settled that one-third of these are to retire, some voluntarily and some otherwise, Of the remainder about one-half are now in the throes of re-election or defeat. Mesers. Butler, Camden, Coke, Hunton, Manderson, McPherson, Bansom, Jarvis, Wilson, and Walsh will end their services on March 4. That several others, including Messrs, Berry, Frye, Honr, Lindsay, Morgan, and Wolcott, will continue in their seats for another term is also assured. It is over the election of successors to Messrs. Patten, of Michigan; Lieber as judge advocate general of the Perkins, of California; Washburn, Cullom. Army to succeed Gen. Swaim, retired, will Harris, Higgins, Dolph, Jarvis, Ransom, and others that the interest now turns, and over which there is much discussion at the Capi-tel and among the members of both branches of Congress.

The light in which the greatest interest centered yesterday was that in Michigan. The three men lighting for the seat now ocpled by the young and popular S-nator om that State, Mr. Patton, are ALL WHEE KNOWN IN THIS CITY.

Mr. Burrows has been so long in the House, and so useful a member there, that there was very naturally much interest in the question of his transfer to the other end of the Capitol. Not a few of his friends at the House and openly expressed their hope that he will remain in that bedy. Some of them are of the opinion that he will be of more service to the party and the country, and make for him-self more reputation in the House than in the Senate. Should Mr. Reed become Speaker of the next House, as is confidently expected. It quite natural that Mr. Burrows will become e leader of his party on the floor of that

ody. Mr. Olds, who is one of the men making a fight for the place, is quite well known among the members of both House and Senate. He the members of both House and Senate. He was secretary of the Congressional committee in the early part of the late campaign, though much of the time absent, leaving the details to Col. McKee, who shares with Chairman Babeock the credit of the recent Begablican victory in the overwhelming majority for that party in the House. Mr. Olds, who came to Washington at the carnest request of the late Senator Stockbridge as his secretary, is understood to have been much more than the word implies in the ordinary sense, and Mr. Stockbridge resognized that fact by turning over to him his entire salary.

Stockbridge recognized that fact by turning over to him his entire salary.

Mr. Patton, who was appointed to fill the seat in the Senate after the death of Mr. Stockbridge, has already become a favorite in that body, and the news that he was likely to be elected was the subject of much favorable comment at the Capitol. A graduate of Yaie, and much interested in books and studies, he has already become known as one of the "literary set" of the Senate, and sually walks from the sessions toward his bone in company with some such man as Mr. Lodge, Mr. Hoar, or other of the men in that body whose tastes are that body whose tastes are

Davis, of World's Fair fame, and "Hilly" Mason, so well remembered in the House, where his "quips and cranks and wanton wiler" made him the favorite in certain circles. It is pelieved, however, that Mr. Culiom will be re-elected.

Senator Harris left here expecting to re-main in Tennessee until his re-election. He recognized the fact that there was some unrecognized the fact that there was some un-organized and scattering opposition to his re-election, but from what can be learned among the Tennesseeans bere the opposition a not likely to be very sharp or successful. is not likely to be very sharp or successful.

From Minnesota comes word that Senstoy

the Howgate Indictments. Argument was heard before Judge Mcthe rejoinder of the defense was before the court. The rejoinder asserted that the lapse of time in their favor had not been inter-rupted by Capt. Howgate's alleged flight and the three years' limitation against indictment of him had long since expired.

Mr. Birney, in discussing the demurrer pointed out that in the common law there is pointed out that in the common law there is no limitation of prosecution of criminals, and even under the statutes the murderer has no protection by passing of time. He argued that while Howgate might have escaped on this plea if he had remained here three years after the commission of his crime, he could claim immunity after escaping when actually on trial. He cited several authorities in sup-that the bar of limitation by time held good.

In several States, he said also, statutes had been canceted specifically providing that while the defendant was a fugitive from justice the statute of limitations was suspended. Congress had failed to use the same particularity in its statute and, it was to be interred, did in its statute and, it was to be interred, did not mean to suspend the statute in cases such as the present.

In closing we said the old forgery indictments had been under the local statute, while the new one was under the statute applying to the whole country. No one had thought of an indictment under the general statute till Mr. Birney had suggested it, and certainly the statute ought to bar this.

Toward the close Judge McComas asked several questions, from which it could be in-several questions, from which it could be in-ferred that he will sustain the demurrer. At the conclusion of Mr. Worthington's argu-ment it was announced that the hearing would be continued at 11 s. m. to-day.

A somewhat similar question at issue had never oven passed upon in a criminal case. A somewhat similar point had been passed upon by Justice Miller, of the Supreme Court, in the case of a pension attorney. The attorney had failed to pay over money collected on a pension, and was criminally liable under the statute. But before the indictment was found the three years had claused. The district attorney in years had clapsed. The district attorney, in this case, had urged that the attorney was guilty of a continuing offense so long as he held the money. As he still held it when presecution was instituted, he was not pro-tected by limitation.
